The Global Compact on Refugees (GCR) specifies that “a global academic network on refugee, other forced displacement, and statelessness issues will be established, involving universities, academic alliances, and research institutions, UNHCR and other relevant stakeholders.”

Launched at the 2019 Global Refugee Forum (GRF), the Global Academic Interdisciplinary Network (GAIN) facilitates research, teaching and support in solidarity with displaced students and scholars. One year into the work of the network, this side event provides an update on key outcomes and opportunities for collaboration with academics in support of the GCR.
