Protecting People Forced to Flee

Uzbekistan has not acceded to the Refugee Convention and does not yet have a national asylum system. As such, forcibly displaced people in the country are not protected from being returned to danger, and have no access to socio-economic rights or services, including lawful employment, healthcare, or social protection.

Under the Universal Periodic Review in the Human Rights Council in 2018 and in 2023, Uzbekistan supported recommendations to ratify the Refugee Convention and its Protocol.

In support of the government's efforts, UNHCR commissioned an Analytical Report which examines national legislation related to refugee issues and provides recommendations and follow-up measures to guide future legislative changes and development of the national protection framework.

UNHCR advocates establishment of a Refugee Law and asylum system in line with international standards, allowing forcibly displaced people in the country to legalise their stay, and access basic human and socio-economic rights.

Working with Partners

Government partners in Uzbekistan include the National Human Rights Centre; Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Internal Affairs, and Justice; Office of the Ombudsperson; the Lawyers' Training Center under the Ministry of Justice; and the University of World Economy and Diplomacy.

As a UN Country Team member, UNHCR engages with UN and development partners to ensure forcibly displaced and stateless people are not left behind in Uzbekistan's achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

At the December 2023 Global Refugee Forum, the UN Country Team in Uzbekistan – together with 49 other UN Country Teams around the world – contributed to the UN Common Pledge 2.0, committing to support host countries' efforts to include refugees and stateless people in national systems, such as health and education, and to boost refugees' access to decent work.
