Key Priorities

- Protection (monitoring) / Asylum: COVID-19 measures introduced in March 2020 (suspension of interviews, cancellation of hearings, etc.) were gradually lifted but impacted access to and length of the procedure. Lately CGRS consulted UNHCR on the use of videoconferencing to undertake interviews. Nearly systematic detention at the border, access to quality legal aid incl. in detention and status determination vis-a-vis some caseloads are potential sources of concern and are constantly monitored by UNHCR and its partners.
- Resettlement and Complementary Pathways: Following a suspension in 2019, Belgium resumed resettlement in fall 2020. Since then, Belgium resettled 176 refugees, of which 14 via a community sponsorship pilot project conducted by Fedasil and Caritas. Belgium has committed to continue resettlement with an objective of 1,400 places for 2021.
- Integration: In 2019, UNHCR started developing a two-tier project on buddying as a tool for social inclusion and social cohesion, with a “Buddies with Refugees” multimedia campaign launched in 2020 to highlight the contribution of buddying to a welcoming society and to the integration of refugees, and a study day that will take place on 1 April 2021 to assess the role of buddying as an integration tool, in light of challenges faced by refugees in their inclusion and integration into Belgian society.
- Community Empowerment and Self-Reliance: UNHCR is currently implementing the Refugee Committee project which aims at establishing refugee collective representation structures and establish formal space for consultations and participation with authorities and (integration) stakeholders in Brussels. Since 2019, this pilot project has established 6 refugee committees. These structures are now going through a training and mentoring phase to prepare for their future representation and advocacy duties.
- Advocacy: UNHCR Belgium enjoys a constructive cooperation with the new government and the new Cabinet of the Secretary of State for asylum and migration.

- Family reunification: In 2020, family reunification has been heavily impacted by the COVID-19 measures, and several restrictive draft laws have been introduced in Parliament. UNHCR monitors the situation, provides comments, is in continuous communication with the authorities and supports individual cases.

Working with Partners

- UNHCR Belgium enjoys a good cooperation with its two implementing partners: NANSEN (which provides legal support to lawyers and asylum-seekers on the territory and in detention) and Myria, the Federal Migration Centre (which formulates policy advice and provides legal support to beneficiaries of IP, lawyers, and case workers to facilitate family reunification).
- UNHCR also has good working relations with the main refugee NGOs.
- External Engagement: The Public Information unit raises awareness about the situation of refugees in Belgium and worldwide to the general public. On World Refugee Day 2020, the unit produced a 2-minute video about asylum-seekers and refugees in Belgium and Luxembourg assisting society in the fight against COVID-19.

Statelessness

- Belgium is party to the 1954 and 1961 statelessness Conventions. Nationality law contains solid safeguards. Statelessness determination is the competency of tribunals and has been recently centralized.
- In spite of the repeated commitments by precedent governments, no residence permit is automatically granted to recognized stateless persons, leaving them often de facto without rights.
