

In Italy, there are organizations who offer protection and assistance to people who have been or are exploited.

These organizations offer protection through safe houses, legal and health assistance and they can help in ensuring your residence in Italy, if you are interested to remain in the country. They will propose to you to start a special support programme upon certain conditions that will be explained to you from the beginning.

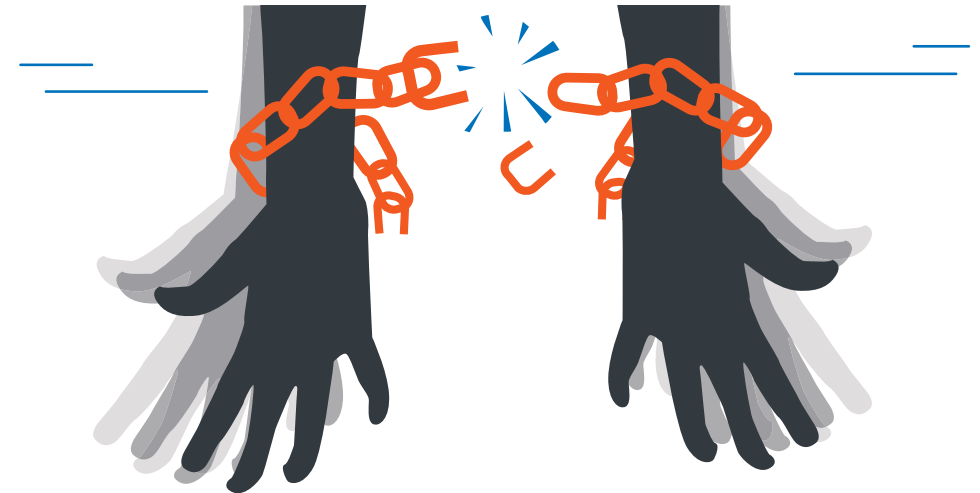

You can contact these organizations to receive information on their services or to receive immediate help.

This service is free and anonymous.

"I trusted a woman who promised me to send me to Italy to change my life. Now, after a horrible trip, I'm here forced to prostitution to pay my debt".

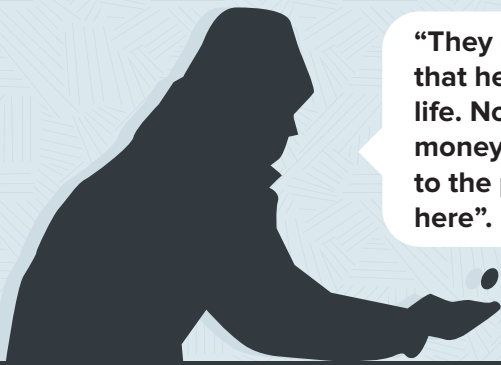

J.R., 22 years old

"I faced a long trip because my father decided to send me to Europe to help my family. Now, I'm working 10 hours per day, every day of the week, without rest, I live in the place where I work and I still have to pay back the debt I incurred for the travel fees with the person who provided me with the job here in Italy".

M.H., 18 years old

"They convinced me to leave telling me that here I would have found a better life. Now I live in the street, I beg for money and I give some of those money to the people who help me to arrive here".

G.S., 20 years old

If you find yourself in one of these situations you can:

Receive information about laws and assistance within your rights

Receive the medical support that you need

If you are concerned about your safety, you can receive hospitality in a safe place

If you want to remain in Italy, you can ask for International Protection or other types of permit to stay

You can ask to return to your country of origin in a safe way with a project of assisted voluntary return
