In 2014, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees launched the 10-year #IBelong campaign to end statelessness, aiming to catalyse commitment, action and solidarity to eradicate statelessness. Over the past nine years, the campaign made significant progress in preventing and reducing statelessness through the combined efforts of States, civil society organizations, United Nations agencies, academic institutions, and regional and stateless-led organizations. The side event will showcase some of these achievements and provide an update on preparations for the high-level segment on statelessness and the launch of the new Global Alliance to End Statelessness, both of which will take place during the seventy-fifth plenary session of the UNHCR Executive Committee in October 2024.
